THE YORK 42 RANGITIKI WAS LAUNCHED IN THE SUMMER OF 2006.

Expanding upon the same concept as the highly successful YORK 36, the first example of this stunning 42 footer was built for a New England couple who wished to do long term coastal cruising and sport fishing. The hull design shares the same bottom philosophy as the smaller 36, but adds further refinements to the geometry required for fast jet propulsion. Tremendous attention was paid to sound suppression, resulting in only 72 decibels when running at top speed and considerably less at cruise. The York 42 has a luxurious varnished teak interior designed by Jane Plachter of Fort Lauderdale.

With twin Yanmar 440 diesels the top speed is 29 knots with a recommended long-term cruising speed of 26 knots. There is sufficient deadrise forward to permit running even at this speed in choppy conditions, allowing the owners to get to their destination in a hurry. The water jets are KaMeWa FF310's.

The yacht is supplied with coordinated "VectorStick" electronic directional control to provide easy maneuvering in tight quarters, which can be a problem on other jet designs. This is a state of the art control system built by Rolls Royce. A retractable stern fin is an industry leading enhancement that will mitigate the propensity for jet hulls to become skittish in a following sea. This fin is an exclusive York Marine development.

The innovations and custom quality do not end with the mechanical systems. This exciting new design features one of the most luxuriously appointed interiors ever offered in a forty-two foot package. RANGITIKI has a varnished teak interior, and the builder is happy to build in the owner's choice of any suitable hardwood.

The deck styling includes wraparound windows, all of which are of bent glass to eliminate "flat reflections" and give the yacht unique beauty. A large flybridge and beautifully rounded lockers and deck access steps illustrate the attention to detail aboard the YORK 42.
